

Community
HealthCorps

Arizona 2010-2011

Community HealthCorps' mission is to improve healthcare access and enhance workforce development through community health center sponsored national service programs. Founded in 1995 by the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC), it is the largest health-focused, national AmeriCorps program with nearly 500 members serving in various capacities around the country in 19 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Community HealthCorps members, placed at over 150 delivery sites in 2010-11, strive to enhance access to primary and preventive services and programs for the medically underserved.

What do Community HealthCorps members do?

Community HealthCorps members perform a variety of activities associated with health services and programs for patients and communities, often by functioning like community health workers.

Examples of activities include:

- Creating a “medical home”: Helping families and community members navigate the healthcare system thus improving their frequency of using health center services/programs
- Educating the community: Providing education/counseling around health issues and disparities that impact the specific communities members serve
- Going the distance & extending basic care: Supporting treatment plans by providing follow-up, support and case management to individual patients; enrolling qualified patients into health insurance and other applicable programs; and assessing other patient needs such as housing, legal and financial assistance

This year Community HealthCorps members assisted 592,875 people - of which 62,263 people were helped to enroll in insurance plans and other health related services and programs, and 112,654 people received health education and supportive counseling. Community HealthCorps members also recruited and coordinated the work of 8,442 non-AmeriCorps volunteers (nearly 2,000 volunteered more than once). These volunteers logged 35,026 hours in assisting health centers and other community-based organizations to address health and human needs. The value of the service from Community HealthCorps members and the volunteers they recruited is estimated at just over $17 million dollars (Independent Sector estimates the value of volunteer time for 2010 at $21.36/hour).

In Arizona, the Marana Health Center hosted eight Community HealthCorps members who volunteered across eight different placement sites.

“I have a friend who was recently diagnosed as a diabetic. She lost her health insurance but with the training that I have received at Marana Health Center I was able to help her plan meals and even show her how to use her new machine that checks her blood sugar levels. Also, because Marana Health Center is a place that helps people get in to see a doctor with or without health insurance, she was able to see a doctor. She is adjusting to life as a diabetic and can't thank me enough for knowing how to help her when she needed it the most!” – Ana (Marana Health Center)

Marana Health Center
(Marana, AZ)

Marana, Arizona

www.maranahealthcenter.org

www.CommunityHealthCorps.org

Arizona
Community HealthCorps
members directly served 3,613 people during the 2010-11 program year at
Marana Health Center.

Of those community members directly served...

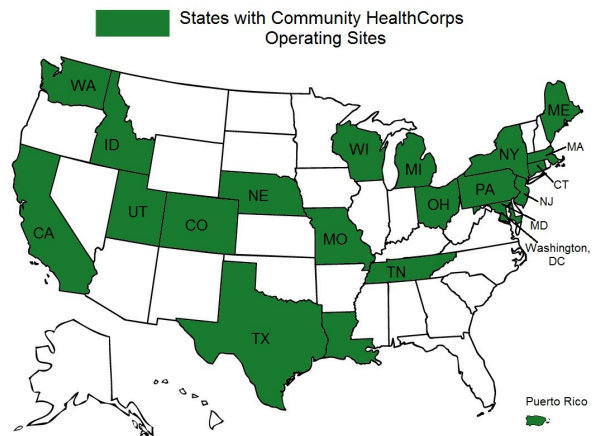

Other areas of service activities included:

- * Case management services (referrals, facilitation, and assessments)
- * Health education and supportive counseling
- * Other patient services focused on asthma, obesity, hypertension, and tobacco cessation
- * ...and more!

2011-12 Program Year

For the next program year of 2011-12, almost 500 Community HealthCorps members will serve nationwide. In the upcoming year, Community HealthCorps members will continue volunteering in racially/culturally diverse rural, urban and suburban communities, as well as migrant farm worker, homeless and public housing populations.

No matter where they serve, Community HealthCorps members become part of a person's struggle for better health and economic independence.

For more information, click this QR code using your smartphone or other compatible device.

