

Community
HealthCorps

Maine 2010-2011

Community HealthCorps' mission is to improve healthcare access and enhance workforce development through community health center sponsored national service programs. Founded in 1995 by the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC), it is the largest health-focused, national AmeriCorps program with nearly 500 members serving in various capacities around the country in 19 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Community HealthCorps members, placed at over 150 delivery sites in 2010-11, strive to enhance access to primary and preventive services and programs for the medically underserved.

What do Community HealthCorps members do?

Community HealthCorps members perform a variety of activities associated with health services and programs for patients and communities, often by functioning like community health workers.

Examples of activities include:

- Creating a “medical home”: Helping families and community members navigate the healthcare system thus improving their frequency of using health center services/programs
- Educating the community: Providing education/counseling around health issues and disparities that impact the specific communities members serve
- Going the distance & extending basic care: Supporting treatment plans by providing follow-up, support and case management to individual patients; enrolling qualified patients into health insurance and other applicable programs; and assessing other patient needs such as housing, legal and financial assistance

This year Community HealthCorps members assisted 592,875 people - of which 62,263 people were helped to enroll in insurance plans and other health related services and programs, and 112,654 people received health education and supportive counseling. Community HealthCorps members also recruited and coordinated the work of 8,442 non-AmeriCorps volunteers (nearly 2,000 volunteered more than once). These volunteers logged 35,026 hours in assisting health centers and other community-based organizations to address health and human needs. The value of the service from Community HealthCorps members and the volunteers they recruited is estimated at just over $17 million dollars (Independent Sector estimates the value of volunteer time for 2010 at $21.36/hour).

In Bangor, Maine, Penobscot Community Health Care hosted eight Community HealthCorps members who served across eight different placement sites.

“The best thing about Community HealthCorps is the many opportunities I receive at Family Medicine to try new skills, and the level of trust afforded to me there.”

– Tammy (Penobscot Community Health Care)

Penobscot Community Health Care <http://www.pchcbangor.org/>

www.CommunityHealthCorps.org

Penobscot Community HealthCorps
members directly served 6,637 people during the 2010-11 program year.

Of those community members directly served...

Outreach services were provided to 1,149

3,080 were assisted with case management services including facilitation, assessment and referrals

993 were provided with health education or supportive counseling

Other areas of service activities included:

- * Financial counseling and eligibility assistance
- * Enrollment in health insurance, prescription assistance & other programs/services
- * Volunteer management
- * Health information technology services
- * ...and more!

2011-12 Program Year

For the next program year of 2011-12, nine Community HealthCorps members continue serving in Maine, with almost 500 members serving nationwide. In the upcoming year, Community HealthCorps members will continue volunteering in racially/culturally diverse rural, urban and suburban communities, as well as migrant farm worker, homeless and public housing populations.

No matter where they serve, Community HealthCorps members become part of a person's struggle for better health and economic independence.

Where Members Serve in Maine
(2011-12 Program Year)

“Being [a Community HealthCorps member] within the infrastructure of the health centers allows plenty of opportunities to help and contribute to the entire organization.”

– Raymond, Penobscot Community Health Care

For more information, click this QR code using your smartphone or other compatible device.

